FAMOUS BEAUTY MARRIED TO A MARQUIS

Lady Birkenhead leaving with her two daughters after the wedding.

The Marquis de Casa Maury and his bride after their marriage yesterday.

The two bridesmaids, in picturesque dresses.

Miss Paula Gellibrand, the famous society beauty, for her marriage at St. James', Spanish-place, yesterday, to the Marquis de Casa Maury, wore a classically simple gown of white satin, which made her look very much like a picture by Botticelli. She had a PALE LOVELINESS.

Bride Follows Fashion of Vivid Red Finger-Nails.

Miss Paula Gellibrand, who became famous two seasons ago as one of London's leading beauties, looked almost as white as her wedding gown when she went to the altar yesterday for her marriage to the Marquis de Casa Maury.

The wedding was to have taken place last Thursday, but was delayed by the bride's illness; she had an attack of influenza after returning from a trip to Paris.

Artistic society was well represented at the church, St. James', Spanish-place, for Miss Gellibrand is as well known for the variety of her interests as for her beauty.

The bridegroom, a Spanish nobleman, served in the R.A.F. in the war, and is a popular racing motorist in this country and on the Continent.

7-MINUTES' CEREMONY.

Bridesmaids' Full-Skirted Dresses of New Crinkled Mode.

After she had been introduced in Mayfair by the Baroness d'Erlanger, Miss Gellibrand became a film actress—she was the first society girl to take up the work seriously, just before Lady Diana Cooper began her screen career.

Another of the bride's admirers was as a "mannequin" in a West End shop.

The wedding ceremony, performed by Father Bampton, took less than seven minutes.

When the bride arrived in a car with her brother-in-law, Captain Hatters, and then descended very slowly.

Very slowly still did the procession walk the long aisle, the bride's attendants being pretty little Zara Mainwaring, daughter of Sir Harry and Lady Mainwaring, and Miss Baba d'Erlanger, daughter of the Baroness.

Both wore full-skirted dresses with tight bodies of thick gold cloth, with the new crinkled material which has been the light.

POPPY-RED FINGER-NAILS.

Miss d'Erlanger wore a swathed gold head-dress, and carried a gold and white enamel ivory case, the bridegroom's gift. Both Miss Gellibrand and her bridesmaids depicted the new fashion for "coloured" nail tints, theirs being almost poppy red.

The Marquis de Casa Maury was present, wearing a black satin cloak embroidered in silver braid to match a silver hat; Baroness d'Erlanger wore blue with shaded bugles, a chinchilla wrap and silver locket; the bridegroom's sister, Mme. Nagalmackers, was in beige silk lace with long fur-edged panels.

The Countess of Birkenhead, with a red spray mount in her hair and a black cloak, with the Ladies Eleanor and Pamela Smith, Sir Harry and Lady Mainwaring, Mrs. Cyril Asquith, the Hon. Mrs. Maurice Brett (Miss Zena Daro), with the Hon. Mrs. Dudley Ward, the Hon. Mrs. Minister, Mme. and Miss de la Roche, were among the guests at the wedding and subsequent reception at Baroness d'Erlanger's house in Piccadilly. The honeymoon is to be spent in Spain.

HAIG AND HAIG TO GO.

Famous Whisky Firm's Liquidation—Cannot Get Rare Brands.

In a few days' time the old-established firm of Scotch whisky blenders, Haig and Haig, will be non-existent, and bottles of their whisky will be unobtainable.

The firm has gone into voluntary liquidation owing to the purchase by a powerful combination of proprietary whisky brand owners of old stocks, including those of Messrs. Robertson and Baxter, Ltd.

As Haig and Haig are now unable to obtain these limited stocks they prefer to go into liquidation rather than fill their bottles with inferior whisky.

"We would rather lose our business than our reputation," said a prominent official of the firm to The Daily Mirror yesterday.

MINERS' HIGHER WAGES MOVE.

A delegate conference of Welsh miners at Cardiff yesterday unanimously decided to instruct delegates at the forthcoming National Conference in London to vote for the termination of the present national wage agreement and to insist on a higher minimum.

Seventeen thousand South Wales miners have struck, and at least twenty thousand more have tendered notices to enforce the ban on non-union labour.

£5,000,000 FOR RUMANIA.

Major Boyd-Carpenter told Sir Philip Dawson in the Commons yesterday that advances made by the British Government to the Rumanian Government since the Armistice totalled about £5,000,000.

SAVE EARL FLIGHT.

Lady Carnarvon in 'Plane for Egypt with Doctor.

INSECT BITE POISON.

The Countess of Carnarvon left Croydon Aerodrome yesterday afternoon in a special aeroplane for Egypt.

She received a cablegram earlier in the day stating that the Earl was seriously ill, and the Countess immediately arranged with the Daimler Airway for a special three-seater De Havilland aeroplane in order to fly to Egypt, accompanied by a Harley-street specialist.

Paris was reached last night, and it is hoped to fly to Rome or further to-day, arriving in Egypt to-morrow.

The Earl of Carnarvon, discoverer, with Mr. Harold Carter, of the Luxor Tomb of the Pharaoh Tut-ankh Amen, is suffering from severe blood-poisoning, presumably due to an insect bite, says a Reuter telegram from Cairo.

Since the reopening of the tomb Lord Carnarvon and his fellow-excavators have been devoting themselves to laboratory work.

HOLD-UP CHARGE.

Story of £250 and Revolver Hidden Under Floor—Brothers Remanded.

Handcuffed together, two young brothers, Daniel Thomas Mainwaring and Gwynfrid Mainwaring, Pontardawe colliers, appeared before the Swansea magistrates yesterday in connection with the hold-up at Glynrhiffrid tinplate offices, Pontardawe, on Friday, when John Chilcott, the cashier, was robbed of £245 in Treardreaf.

At the point of revolvers presented by men wearing black velvet masks.

They were remanded until to-morrow. It was stated that during a search of Gwynfrid's house Sergeant Carpenter, digging the garden, found a suitcase containing clothing.

In the bedroom, under the floor, there were £250 in notes, a velvet mask, an automatic revolver and ammunition.

BURIED ALIVE TWO DAYS

Dramatic Story of Miner Who Was Unhurt in Pit Prison.

Amazing details of two days spent entombed in a mine were told to The Daily Mirror yesterday by William Simon, the sixty-six-year-old miner, of Cross Hands, near Llanelli, who was snatched from death at Blaenrhiffrid Colliery.

A mass of coal and debris weighing over 100 tons fell in and trapped Simon on Friday, the roof gradually pressed upon him until he became a helpless prisoner.

Rescuers in relays of four hours each, night and day, were engaged toiling with pick and shovel from Friday morning until five o'clock on Sunday morning, when Simon, in reply to their anxious calls, answered in a feeble voice, "All is well." Two hours later he was brought triumphantly to the surface.

Simon added that he was not injured at all, and was able to walk home unaided.

CITY MAN LIBELLED.

Full Apology Ends in Withdrawal of the Action.

An action for libel brought by a well-known City man, Mr. Clarence Charles Hatry, Upper Brook-street, W., against Messrs. Walbrook and Co., Ltd., printers, and the National Champion Press Syndicate, Ltd., proprietors and publishers of the "National Champion," was withdrawn in the King's Bench Division yesterday after the allegations had been unreservedly withdrawn and an apology tendered.

Counsel said a certain payment would be made.

Mr. Patrick Hastings, K.C., for Mr. Hatry, said he understood the National Champion Press Syndicate, Ltd., was in liquidation, and the paper defunct. The libel complained of was an advertisement in Mr. Hatry for his relationship with a company known as Amalgamated Industrials. Counsel explained that allegations were made against Mr. Hatry's financial connection with the company, and that it had been stated he was interested in the City Equitable when that company's affairs were before the public. All this was untrue.

RUGGER CAPTAIN'S WEDDING.

Lieutenant-Commander R. Davies, captain of the English Rugby fifteen who defeated Scotland on Saturday, is to be married on Thursday, at two o'clock, at St. Jude's Church, Southsea.

The bride is Miss Peggy Waymouth, daughter of Mrs. Waymouth, of Southsea.

SUICIDE AFTER TOOTHACHE.

"I don't know what the world is coming to," said the Leckburn coroner yesterday, when a woman, twenty-three, found drowned after having teeth extracted owing to toothache.

£96,500 GIFT.

15 London Hospitals' Benefit from Builder's Will.

MEMORIAL BUILDINGS.

Fifteen London hospitals have benefited to the extent of £96,500 from the will of Mr. William Shepherd, a well-known builder.

Sums allotted by the executors include:—£35,000 to Guy's to finance the erection and completion of the new message department and extension of the nurses' house; £10,000 to the York in July, 1921, and is to be named "The William Shepherd House."

To the Brompton Hospital £25,000 was given for the erection and completion of a new wing to be named after the benefactor, and £25,000 goes to St. Thomas' for the erection of dining and recreation rooms for the use of nurses in the hospital, the new building having a flat roof to provide a playground.

Six thousand pounds was given to the Belgrave Hospital for Children, Clapham-road, for the purpose of continuing the erection and completion of the south wing.

Sums of £1,000 have been apportioned to the following for the endowment of beds in memory of Mr. Shepherd:—

City of London Chest Hospital, Evelina Children's Hospital, Middlesex Hospital, Hampstead Hospital, Charing Cross Hospital, Westminster Hospital, St. Monica's Hospital received £500.

HAUNTED BEDSTEAD.

Handsome Cloaked "Ghost" Who Smells of Violets.

Picturesque and sinister are the elements in a ghost story of a bedstead, an old mahogany one, found under heaps of lumber in an inn yard, and which now belongs to Mrs. Frank Gray, Mill-street, Melton Mowbray.

Some time ago, she asserts, came from the room in which it is kept, and it is bloodstained and haunted by a stranger and a repellent creature with candle and pistol.

The mysterious, handsome stranger (who has been seen, and who wears a long cloak lined with blue, exhales a scent of violets and strangely perfumed cigarettes.

BATTLE OF THE STANDS.

Exciting Scenes at Brighton Auction—£76 for Ice-Cream Stall.

Amazing scenes were witnessed at Brighton yesterday in connection with the sale by auction of trading stands on the beach for the ensuing year.

There was much speculation among bidders as to the prices they would have to pay. Dissatisfaction was expressed when a man who lost his sight during the war failed to secure a stand to play the concertina, but more exciting incidents followed.

When one man outbid another for the sweets and refreshments still, which realised £56, a rush was made and disorder prevailed until the police bundled one of the aggressors out of the sale room.

Another outburst when a woman endeavoured unsuccessfully to secure an ice cream stall. It was not until the price had reached £76 that she retired from the competition.

The average price for trading stalls was about £30, and the sale realised £2,156, compared with £2,500 a year ago.

SOCIALIST LABOUR.

L.L.P. Says 'Past Year Has Witnessed Our Greatest Achievements.'

That the past year has been one of "unparalleled activity on behalf of Socialism, and has witnessed the greatest achievements of the party since its inception," is the claim made by the Independent Labour Party in its report.

"The clearest indication," says the report, "of the increased activity and the influence of the Socialist wing of the Labour Party is to be found in the strength of the L.L.P. representation in the House of Commons."

"Of the 142 Labour members, over eighty are members of the L.L.P. Thirty-two of these, including J. Ramsey MacDonald, Philip Snowden, and practically all the Scottish group, were directly nominated through the L.L.P."

The total membership of the party is now approximately 50,000.

£600,000 FOR AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Fred E. Busby, the organiser of a number of exhibitions and a director of Associated Newspapers, has been appointed managing director of the new Amusement Park, Ltd., the concessionaires for all the amusements at the British Empire Exhibition.

On the equipment of the Amusements Park £600,000 is to be expended.

LADY ACTON DEAD.

Lady Acton, wife of Lord Acton, died on Saturday at Aldenham, Bridgnorth, Shropshire, after a long illness.

GIVE PIT PONIES HOLIDAYS.

Plea for Suffering Animals by R.S.P.C.A.

CRUELTY STORIES.

'Diseased, Scarred, Wounded and Emaciated.'

Grim stories of cruelty to pit ponies were told to The Daily Mirror yesterday by Mr. G. Wakeford, London superintendent of the R.S.P.C.A.

They were stories of emaciated and diseased animals, some bearing scars and wounds, toiling day and night without proper rest.

In one case it was discovered, said Mr. Wakeford, that a pony's eye was destroyed because it had not worked properly.

A statement that the Miners' Federation intend to place evidence of cruelty before the Government has aroused great satisfaction among animal lovers, and the R.S.P.C.A. intend to support the evidence.

WORST CASES HIDDEN.

Official Tells of Revolting Cruelty—Miners Who Are Humane.

"I should like to see it made compulsory," said Mr. Wakeford, "that all pit ponies should have week-end holidays out of the mines."

"This, of course, may not be a practical proposition from the miners' point of view, but there is no reason why a regular system of holidays for ponies, say once a fortnight, or even once a month, should not be instituted."

Mr. Wakeford, who has been responsible for several prosecutions in connection with the ill-treatment of pit ponies, instanced many cases of revolting cruelty.

There was the instance of a pony having an eye dug out with a pick because it could not work hard enough.

"R.S.P.C.A. inspectors," continued Mr. Wakeford, "have to obtain permission before they can inspect the animals."

"This usually takes a considerable time, and as they do not know the mines, and cannot go where they like, it is quite probable that the worst cases are hidden away before their arrival."

"DISEASED AND STARVED." "During the last strike, however, they were all brought up for anybody to see, and when in the Midlands I came across some ponies which were in a dreadful condition."

"They were emaciated, diseased and starved, and some bore horrible scars and wounds."

The mine manager and several others were prosecuted in this instance, but when the case was due for hearing a month afterwards the ponies, which had been turned loose in the fields to eat the young spring grasses, were scarcely recognisable as the same animals."

Mr. Wakeford was certain that in the majority of cases it was not the miners themselves who were responsible for the cruelty.

"Pony boys" have a charge of them, and prosecutions have often been made through information supplied by humane miners.

"The only people who are allowed to inspect the ponies at any time," concluded Mr. Wakeford, "are the Home Office inspectors. As they are only eight of them, it stands to reason that they cannot do the work properly."

TELL-TALE ENTRY.

Lady Chichester Identifies Husband's Writing in Hotel Register.

Lady Phyllis Dorothy Chichester was granted a decree owing to the desertion and misconduct of her husband, Sir Edward George Chichester, Bart., of Youlston, Barnstable.

Lady Chichester said the marriage was in 1915. She identified the entry, "Edward Chichester," in the register of the Waldorf Hotel as being in her husband's handwriting, and also was practically certain the entry, "Mrs. E. Chichester, Newcastle-on-Tyne," which followed it, was also written by him.

Lady Chichester was given the custody of the children.

STORMS COMMONS OVER IRISH DEPORTATIONS

Attorney-General's Assurance That There Will Be No Court-Martial Trials.

SIR M. WALLACE TO BE ON APPEAL COMMITTEE

Pisto's for Police Guards at Scotland Yard—Outrage Threats in Letters to Officials.

Heated passages marked the Commons discussion yesterday of the legal status of the hundred Irish men and women who were "rounded up" in Britain a week ago and sent to Dublin for internment.

The Attorney-General assured the House that there was no possibility of any deportees being court-martialled.

Sir Matthew Wallace (formerly on the War Compensation Board) had been appointed to the Advisory Committee to which deportees may appeal.

Police guards at Scotland Yard yesterday carried automatic pistols. It is understood that letters threatening outrage have been received.

DANGEROUS CONSPIRACY AGAINST FREE STATE.

Home Secretary Says He Was Forced to Act.

UPROARIOUS SCENE.

The first of a bombardment of questions from the Labour benches on the deportations came from the Leader of the Opposition, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald.

Replying, the Attorney-General stated that no proceedings would be instituted against any of the deportees anywhere without the Home Secretary's consent.

Persons to be tried would be dealt with in exactly the same way as if deportation had not taken place. Crimes committed in England would come before English magistrates. If a crime had been committed in Ireland the trial would take place there. Wherever it took place the accused would be present.

There was not the least possibility of any deportee being tried by court-martial. Mr. Lansbury asked the Home Secretary if it was not a fact that many persons in Irish prisons had been shot "not in the ordinary way, but accidentally."

The Home Secretary: I am not aware of that. The Free State Government have undertaken to do nothing but intern these men and women without agreement with the British Government.

Mr. Lansbury (very loudly): It is not a question of the Free State Government ordering the executions, but of men being shot in these prisons merely by accident.

There was some laughter and Mr. Lansbury rapped out: "Well, laugh! You will probably be shot yourself some day."

LABOUR M.P.'S REFUSED ACCESS.

Mr. Buchanan, in moving the adjournment to call attention to deportees interned in Ireland, said the House had been told that they were in Mountjoy Prison, but there was no assurance that they might not be moved anywhere the Free State Government desired.

If the Government broke the Constitution, so should he, and he was going to use all the resources he could to assist these men to come back to their wives and families and give them a fair trial here.

Mr. Rhys Davies, seconding, said these men were entitled to all the amenities the ordinary criminals got.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor described the treatment of the deportees as a gross outrage.

Mr. Maxton declared that a man who had been arrested in the own constituency was a quiet, law-abiding citizen, who had not had any association with the extreme Irish movement.

This man had left behind him a wife and two children who were absolutely unprovided for.

COMPELLED TO ACT.

Mr. Bridgeman, the Home Secretary, replying on the debate, said the exceptional measures which had been taken were passed by the House of Commons under the Restoration of Ireland Act.

There was a dangerous conspiracy going on in this country against the Irish Free State intended to facilitate commission of crime.

The circumstances were such that it would be perfectly impossible for any Home Secretary to have taken no action in the matter.

Mr. Kirkwood got up and interrupted the Home Secretary amid disorder and cries of "Name."

Mr. Kirkwood: I do not care a straw if you name me. (Uproar.)

The Speaker's order led to hon. members on both sides to preserve order.

REPORTED GERMAN PLAN FOR RUHR MEDIATION.

Berlin Story of Proposals to Britain and America.

QUESTION TO PREMIER.

An official telegram from Berlin to Paris (quoted by the Central News) confirms that Germany has made fresh proposals for a settlement of the Ruhr question to the Cabinets of London and Washington.

No news has been received in Paris that the German Note to Washington is being, or has been, transmitted to the French Government.

It may be recalled that the German Ambassador in Washington himself denied that he had been asked to have it sent to France.

With regard to a report that Lord D'Abernon, British Ambassador in Berlin, was on his way to London in connection with the Ruhr question, nothing was known in official quarters yesterday as to any contemplated visit.

Replying to Dr. Chapple, in the Commons, the Premier said it was not a fact that a definite offer had been made by Germany to France of £1,600,000,000 in settlement of reparations, exclusive of payments already made.

Mr. Darbishire asked the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs whether he was aware that the London and Cologne Steamship Co., Ltd., of London, had had to cancel all sailings, both inwards and outwards, between London and Cologne, and that there was awaiting export at present over 1,000 tons of goods, including Government stores for the British garrison. Colonel Buckler, who replied, said he was aware of the facts. The Government had made strong representations to the German Government in regard to the conditions at Cologne and the importance of facilitating the passage of British trade, both inwards and outwards.

LONDON POLICE ARMED.

Scotland Yard Precaution Follows Threats of Attack.

Police officers on guard at Scotland Yard yesterday were armed with automatic pistols.

It is understood that the precaution of arming these officers has been taken following the receipt of letters threatening outrages at Scotland Yard and against certain police officials.

Many of these letters have been received since the Irish round-up a week ago.

LABOUR'S CHALLENGE.

Liberals' Amendment to Mr. Snowden's 'No Private Ownership' Motion.

By Our Political Correspondent.

Mr. Philip Snowden will unmask his guns against the Capitalist system in the House of Commons to-night, when he opens the debate in which he will call for the "abolition of private ownership, control of the means of production and distribution, and for legislative effort towards the gradual setting up by an industrial and social order based on public ownership and democratic control."

The Independent Liberals have tabled an amendment to Mr. Snowden's motion to the effect that the House believes that an attempt to establish a Socialist organisation of industry, whether on the basis of compensation or confiscation, would produce widespread dislocation in every direction.

There is much speculation as to whether the Speaker will permit Mr. Snowden's motion to be talked out.

By a significant coincidence Mr. Snowden will, earlier in the sitting, formally present a Bill for the Nationalisation of the Land of Great Britain and the Abolition of Private Property Therein.

Lady Carnarvon is flying to Egypt with a specialist for Lord Carnarvon, who is seriously ill with blood poisoning.

REPORT ON MESPOT READY FOR GOVERNMENT SOON.

Cabinet Committee Inquiry Finished Last Night.

EVACUATION PROSPECTS.

By Our Lobby Correspondent.

The Committee appointed by the Cabinet to consider the policy of the Government in relation to Mesopotamia held its final meeting at the Commons last night under the chairmanship of the Duke of Devonshire (Colonial Secretary).

The Committee were asked to report upon the possibility of reducing within a reasonable time our commitments in Iraq, both in respect of men and money.

They will now prepare their report for presentation to the Cabinet, and the Government will therefore shortly be in a position to make a more definite statement to the House regarding their Mesopot policy.

As peace with Turkey has not yet been concluded, the question of the British occupation of Mosul must be left over for the present.

FIVE YEARS TO GO.

The belief in the lobby last night was that any policy of reduction or evacuation that may be ultimately agreed on by the Cabinet will not take immediate effect and will be brought about by a process of gradual reduction extending over a limited period of years.

In some circles last night a period of five years was predicted. Should this be so, it will be a depressing outlook for the taxpayer whose ardent desire is that we should leave Mesopotamia with a maximum of speed.

Sir Percy Cox, the High Commissioner, attended the Committee meeting and subsequently called at the Colonial Office.

NEAR EAST TALKS TO-DAY.

Allied Experts to Consider Turkish Plan—Peace Optimism.

British, French and Italian experts will hold their first meeting at the Foreign Office in London to-morrow to consider the Turkish counter-proposals.

M. Bonnard and his colleagues will leave Paris to-day for London, General Sir Charles Harington, the Allied Commander-in-Chief at Constantinople, has been summoned to London to report on the military situation.

With goodwill on both sides the Turkish counter-proposals will be susceptible of reconciliation with the principles and policy contained in the Allied draft treaty. The Lausanne Conference is expected to resume after Easter.

OVERTURNED CAR MYSTERY.

Inquest on Man Adjoined Till Injured Wife Can Give Evidence.

Three people—a husband, wife and child—were found unconscious by the side of an overturned motor-car outside the Royal Northern Branch Hospital at Southgate.

The Islington coroner yesterday adjourned the inquest on the husband, Clarence Ebenezer Huddy (forty), a Southgate draper, who died.

Mrs. Huddy was also seriously injured, and the inquiry was adjourned until she is able to give evidence.

THE KING DINES WITH LIBERALS.

The King leaves London to-morrow morning for Liverpool, where, as the guest of Lord Derby, he will see the Grand National on Friday. Last night his Majesty dined with Lord Lincolnshire, whose guests included Viscount Grey, Mr. Asquith, Sir John Simon and other Independent Liberal leaders.

EVE'S STRONGHOLDS IN LONDON.

1,500 Women to 1,000 Men in Kensington.

SMALLER FAMILIES.

Census Proof of Decrease of Crime in Capital.

"How London Lives" might be a sufficiently comprehensive title for a remarkable Blue Book, published last night, which completes the returns of the 1921 census as far as the capital and its environs are concerned.

Family life, housing, employment, crime, the question of so-called "superfluous" women—these are a few of the subjects on which light is thrown.

For instance, it is shown that, although the total figures of 7,480,201 inhabitants is the highest recorded for the County of London, the average family is considerably smaller.

From an average of 4.15 persons in 1911 the figure dropped to 3.79, a decrease of 9 per cent. The average number of families per occupied dwelling increased from 1.51 in 1911 to 1.59 in 1921, but, on the other hand, owing to the drop in the average size of the family, the average number of occupied rooms per person improved from .38 in 1911 to .91 in 1921.

18,969 EMPTY DWELLINGS.

London's population is therefore on a general average of rooms less densely housed than in 1911. Moreover, the number of families living two or more persons per room was reduced from 121,591 to 110,455. One statement which house-hunters will learn with a shock is that last year there were 18,969 structurally separate dwellings unoccupied in the county.

Structurally separate dwellings occupied numbered 706,450. The excess of private families over occupied dwellings was 414,447.

London's lustiest "children," from the point of view of rapid growth in population, are the outer ring towns of Croydon, Hendon, West Ham and Willesden.

Each has over 10,000 more inhabitants than in 1911.

High percentage increases in the smaller towns are: Kingsbury (128 per cent.), Crayford (91 per cent.) and Wembley (51 per cent.).

UNROMANTIC WESTMINSTER.

For the county as a whole, the average number of persons in each district is sixty per acre.

In various boroughs the densities range widely, rates of 163 per acre being recorded in Southwark, 152 per acre in Shoreditch and 154 per acre in Bethnal Green.

Interesting light is thrown on the problem of the "surplus woman."

Kensington, where men are outnumbered in the ratio of 594 to 1,000, has the highest preponderance of women. Women hold majorities also in Hampstead, Marylebone, Chelsea and Paddington.

Westminster is, apparently, a stronghold of bachelors and spinsters. The numbers of both single men and single women are greater than would be expected, having regard to the high average ages of each sex.

London's morals are, apparently, on the up-grade.

Prison and reformatory inmates also exhibited a decline, the proportions being 13.6 per 10,000 in 1911 and 8.3 in 1921.

"BOBBED BRAINS" ON FILMS.

Mr. St. John Ervine's Attack on Screen Actresses in Brisk Debate.

"The average film actress has bobbed hair and bobbed brains."

So said Mr. St. John Ervine yesterday in a debate at the Stoll Picture Theatre Club of whether or no the film play defeats the imagination.

"The film destroys the imaginative faculty because of its insistence on detail, with the result that nowadays the picture theatre is the resort of tired business men, demented servant girls and poor messenger boys," was another piquant observation by Mr. Ervine.

Mr. Charles Aspinwall (of Goldwyn's, Ltd.) said: "I should like Mr. Ervine to come with me to some of the mining villages in Yorkshire and observe the reaction of the film to the minds of those boys and those girls who are condemned to an industrial life."

"If you can tell me that to show Tom Mix, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin in the way they present their particular characters is going to stunt and dull the imagination of those boys and girls in those areas, then I don't believe you."

MISS MAUD ALLAN'S RETURN.

Miss Maud Allan reappeared in London yesterday, when she interpreted a series of "dance poems" at the Alhambra.

Her best effort was based on Rachmaninoff's "Prelude." In this she appeared as an exile on the way to Siberia, who turns on the tormenting guards, and, struck down to die, a pathetic dance, which gave Miss Allan plenty of scope for effect. She was very well received.

TUESDAY, MARCH 20, 1923.

THE SOCIALIST PARTY.

A "LABOUR" MOTION IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

TO-NIGHT'S debate in the House of Commons is prompted by a private motion from Mr. Philip Snowden, who proposes to "call attention to the failure of the capitalist system," and to challenge "private ownership and control of the means of production and distribution."

Several antagonistic amendments will be moved on behalf of other Parliamentary groups.

A merely oratorical contest? An academic debate? Surely the walls of Jericho will not fall at the blast of Mr. Snowden's eloquence?

There is perhaps a little more in it, from the political point of view, than mere talk. For it would appear that this official resolution definitely commits the Labour Party to Socialism as a solution of our troubles.

This is worth considering.

The Labour Party might profess to represent—well, simply Labour, black-coated or horny-handed, manual or intellectual. It might offer to protect the interests of all workers, of whatever opinion.

With that inclusive persuasion it has no doubt attracted votes from former Liberals of a radical tinge; and, in view of actual Liberal dissensions, its present opportunity is favourable.

Individualist Liberals who, in the words of to-night's Lloyd Georgian amendment, "believe that far-reaching measures of social redress may be accomplished without overturning the present basis of society," will now hesitate before committing themselves to the Socialist Party, as "Labour" ought now more accurately to call itself.

Meanwhile let us "call attention" to a trifling dissension in the Snowden family as regards the "failure" of systems.

Did not Mrs. Philip Snowden visit Moscow and thereafter report upon the "disastrous results" of the Socialist system, applied by "extreme theorists" who regard society as a building you can pull down, instead of as a plant whose growth can be killed or accelerated by careful treatment?

How strange that, just as the failure of the Moscow experiment is obvious even to its initiators, Mr. Snowden, undeterred by his wife's travel-notes, should be advocating a renewal of it in this country!

"CRIES OF LONDON."

A MUFFIN man was fined one shilling yesterday at Highgate for "using a noisy instrument, to wit, a bell, for the purpose of selling muffins."

Evidently the ancient cries of London are becoming criminal. We shall know of them only if we can afford to buy rare colour-prints.

No more shall the muffin-bell remind us of autumn, or lavender of the fading summer. At least, not in high-class residential districts.

In the others, we note that nobody complains of the log-verdor and the cheap clock merchant as they pass. Hardly have they passed than the travelling fishmonger succeeds them; and, in summer, the man with strawberries. Meaner residents do not object to noise.

High-class persons like to make their own.

They do it with the gramophone, audible from open windows; or with the piano, patiently banged by ambitious young persons with operatic tastes.

It would be a fair retaliation if the suppressed muffin man could fine them a shilling or more for using a noisy instrument, to wit, the voice, to the disturbance of high-rate-payers in expensive streets. W. M.

Women Who Dress Too Well—"Ask Your Husband"—The Only Child—Entrance Fees for Our Museums?

THE HUSBAND'S PERMISSION.

SURELY it is absurd to suggest that a woman ought to consult her husband before having her hair bobbed. Her hair is her own property. She has a right to do what she likes with it. Does a woman always go to her husband and say: "May I have a low waist and long sleeves to my new gown?" or "Can I have my hair waved?" etc., etc. This would be Victorianism indeed!

PRUDENCE.

"SIXPENCE ENTRANCE."

THOSE people who wish to charge an entrance fee of 6d. for the British Museum have as their object, I presume, to keep people away!

Notoriously on the days when the National

THE CURSE OF FASHION.

A WELL-DRESSED or over-dressed woman is a frightful nuisance. She causes much dissatisfaction amongst married people.

If I happen to attend a dinner-party with my wife and she sees a beautifully and fashionably dressed woman she will look envious, turn to me and say: "My dear, I simply must have a frock like that." And so she agitates until she manages to get a new frock out of me.

I often try to impress upon her, but without success, that an eight or ten-guinea frock will look just as nice as a fifty-guinea frock, providing the wearer carries it off well by walking with a graceful air. A frock will never look smart on a woman who just plods along. An air of dignity is necessary.

I do not for one moment wish to give the im-

IF MEN DID NOT PAY FOR THEIR OWN CLOTHES!

Perhaps the folly of overdressing would become obvious to many wives who at present spend too much upon dress.

Gallery charges a fee, the place is much less frequented than on other days.

It seems a scandalous thing that this new charge should be put on over the heads of the people principally affected.

With regard to the Natural History Museum, the case is even worse. This place is largely frequented by young people. Few of them will ever think of entering if they have to produce 6d. every time.

A YOUNG STUDENT.

IT is hard that an entrance fee is to be charged for the British Museum and other interesting places.

The British Museum is used a lot by many free-lance journalists and students who go there for facts. Is the reading room to remain free? If so, I suppose that policemen will have to pilot students across the vestibule in case they stray—without sixpences—into the rest of the building.

Museums educate the young. An entrance fee would prevent the children of the poorer classes from looking round the instructive collections.

F. G. W. G.

THE POOR MAN'S CLUB.

HAVING read the letters in your column on the passing of the second reading of Viscountess Astor's Bill, I should like to say, as a domesticated girl, that any decent girl of to-day does not want a husband who spends the days of his approaching manhood in the public-house.

Surely a boy of eighteen or thereabouts should have his mind centred on things that are going to be a help to him throughout life.

A GIRL OF TWENTY.

pression that I am mean, and that I never buy new frocks for my wife. I only wish to point out the way these well-dressed women affect wives of men with a limited income.

A WORRIED HUSBAND.

A RAY OF SUNSHINE.

MANY people seem to think that an only child is likely to be spoiled completely. Not always.

A friend of mine has a charming little boy, about two years of age, who is far from being spoiled. He amuses himself the whole day with his picture books and toys. He is not by any means selfish, but offers a little of his dainties to his admiring aunts and uncles.

He is a great admirer of Pip and Squeak, so one of the Pip and Squeak Annuals was given to him last Christmas, which caused him much amusement.

In fact, this little chap, who is a ray of sunshine in the home, is a model child, and all that can be desired.

S. F. EVANS.

IN MY GARDEN.

MARCH 19.—The sowing of winter greens should take place this week. Choose a bed of light, well-dug soil in an open position, and sow thinly in rows that run about 10in. apart.

The bed should then be covered with netting or black cotton as a protection from birds. When the young plants appear hoe lightly between the rows and dust soot over the seedlings every now and then when they are moist.

Winter greens may be said to include cabbage, Brussels sprouts, kale, savoys, broccoli and autumn cauliflowers.

HOW TO GET FULL VALUE FROM 'WIRELESS.'

KEEP A DIARY OF YOUR OWN HOME EXPERIMENTS.

By PROFESSOR A. M. L. W.

I HOPE I have made it clear that one of the greatest charms of radio is its possibility for infinite variation.

Many experiments can be conducted without an experimental licence.

The aerial can be tried in different positions to pick up the particular broadcasting station in which the operator is most interested.

Frame aerials can be made and tested.

Small "toy" sending sets can be used in one room of a house. They consist of a miniature spark coil and two brass knobs with an aerial in the form of a T about 3ft. high.

These toy sets can be put up for 10s. and then the signals received on the proper receiving set until both sender and receiver are skilled in Morse without incurring the labour of learning. The simplest crystal set is excellent for this work and teaches the principles of wireless very well.

As soon as the operator becomes expert he or she will find that a valve amplifier on the crystal detector makes a good receiver and an experimental licence can be asked for.

The experimental licence is a splendid thing to work for because wireless advance is thus put within the reach of all. Everyone then has a chance of making useful discoveries.

RECORD YOUR RESULTS!

It is important to record all tests and results carefully. A diary should be kept of results and the circumstances and nature of signals recorded.

These records make interesting reading if details of time and other facts are recorded. I wish I could give a prize for the best diary!

Broadcasting does really mean music and speech from a B.B.C. station, and is incredibly cheap at 10s. per annum.

But what about "Morse" signals?

Every day and night a knowledge of Morse (which a child can learn in a week) opens up a new and wonderful interest. Ships' messages at sea can be picked up, news is floating about all day. Messages from liners can be heard on a crystal from long ranges.

Another point. How many clocks are always right?

By listening to Paris at 10.44 for a series of dashes the final dot at 10.45 gives you the world's accurate time.

Soon we shall get the time always right!

In fact, as radio improves day by day, I see no limit to the big and little results that it will be possible to obtain by wireless.

For those who seek mere amusement—well, there will be amusement in plenty.

But for the scientifically-minded there is a good deal more in it than that.

There is the possibility, as I have suggested, in collaborating in new discoveries—in helping forward the work of perfecting radio appliances.

All this is home work, too, in a sense more acceptable than that familiar to the schoolboy. Wireless will make the home amusing in the evening. It may be claimed for it that it will refute the objections of those moralists who are afraid that home life is dying out.

On the contrary, home life will be made "brighter" every evening as the wireless enthusiast succeeds in getting ever better results from his experiments. And the cost, as I have said, is so small as to be nearly negligible.

TO-DAY'S GOSSIP

News and Views About Men, Women and Affairs in General

Brightening Mayfair.

John-street, Mayfair, is evidently determined to be of cheerful aspect this season, for not content with a buttercup-yellow door at No. 1, I see that No. 4 is endeavouring to outshine it! It used to be an all-white house in the days when Miss Ethel Clinton occupied it, but now it is painted café-au-lait colour, and its front door is enamelled brilliant orange! Chelsea—where Mr. Lloyd George has a grass-green door—must look to its laurels.

"Decorative" Streets.

Grosvenor-square, too, is doing its bit to be bright and gay, and I notice the pillars on the refuges are now being done up with a coating of silver paint. In Church-street, Kensington, too, the authorities are experimenting with street lamp standards in red, white, green and silver. They decidedly brighten the neighbourhood.

Famous Pugilist's Family.

Kid Lewis, the boxer—in private life Mr. G. Mendeloff—is now on his way to Capetown with his wife and little son Morton. He will also visit Australia, and probably some contests will be arranged for him. Mrs. Lewis, who was a Miss Elsie Snyder, of New York, possesses some wonderful furs, amongst them an ermine cloak which cost £500. She has taken with her twenty trunks full of her newest frocks. The little boy has a tiny bicycle to ride about the deck on.

Oxford Golf Captain.

This year's Oxford golf captain is Mr. Athol Leslie Murray, and his name may soon be very familiar, though he has a hard task in following such famous players as C. J. H. Tolley and R. H. Wethered. Mr. Murray is a Midlander, with Scottish blood in his veins. His home club is Copt Heath, Warwickshire. He is an old boy of St. George's School, Harpenden, where he was captain of both cricket and football for two years.

Cantab Ditto.

The Cambridge captain, Mr. Hector Goadby, is a son of Sir Kenneth Goadby, the eminent bacteriologist, and plays a lot at Walton Heath, where his parents have a house. He has not been playing in his best form lately, but is one of those players who have happy knacks of reserving their best efforts for the big occasions. He is at Trinity.

Stolen Pictures.

Stories of stolen pictures are like the sands of the sea for multitude. A specially ingenious theft was once effected by an Englishwoman who rented an old house in Paris famous for a number of wall panels by Nattier, Fragonard and other great painters of the Regency period.

Modesty with a Method.

The tenant said that these pictures were "shocking" to her because of the nudity of the figures. It was agreed, after argument, that they should be covered with a fresh panel, on which modern pictures could be hung. That was duly done. The rent was paid in advance, and for a while all went well. Towards the end of her term, however, the tenant disappeared; and when the landlord re-entered and took possession he found that all the Nattiers and Fragonards had vanished with her.

The Finest Line?

A Cheltenham correspondent thinks that the finest line in English poetry is from Wordsworth's "Tintern Abbey":—

Whose dwelling is the light of setting suns. Tennyson once said that this was "almost the grandest in the English language, giving the sense of the abiding in the transient."

Coleridge on Jonson.

Ben Jonson's comedy, "The Alchemist," which was produced by the Phoenix yesterday, was greatly admired by Coleridge, who said that its plot was "absolute perfection for a necessary entanglement, and an unexpected, yet natural, evolution." The part of Druggier, which was played in this revival by Mr. Andrew Leigh, was taken by David Garrick at Drury Lane in 1743.

Lace Exhibition.

The Duchess of Portland does not, as a rule, lend her house for outside affairs, but on Thursday and Friday it will be thrown open for an exhibition of Nottingham lace, some of which will be shown by mannequins wearing dresses made by foremost Paris and London firms. The object is to further the popularity of lace, as there is great distress in the industry at Nottingham, some 75 per cent. of the looms being idle.

Ludlow's Oldest Family.

If family influence stands for anything, Colonel G. Windsor-Clive should be Ludlow's new member. Not only did his father, Colonel G. H. Windsor-Clive, represent the constituency for years, but also his grandfather, and uncle, Mr. R. Windsor-Clive, father of the late Lord Plymouth, whose son, the erstwhile Lord Windsor, is the retiring member. The family connection, in fact, goes back generations, an ancestor having been Ludlow's Recorder in the fifteenth century!

Domesday Oaks.

Near the ancient town is Oakly Park, the family home of the Clives, whose head married the lady who was Baroness Windsor in her own right. This couple were Colonel G. Windsor-Clive's grandparents, and also the late Lord Plymouth's. The mansion at Oakly Park is quite small, but there is a glorious park with some splendid oaks, mentioned in Domesday Book, while through it runs the Teme, with stretches of the best trout and grayling fishing in England.

Donations Gratefully Received.

Over a million children under twelve years of age have passed through the Great Ormond-street Hospital, which was founded seventy-two years ago. At the present time 2,500 little patients are treated weekly by the medical and surgical staff, and there is always a list of 500 waiting for beds. But the hospital owes £20,000 to the bank, and needs £15,000 a year more than its present income in order to carry on.

Miss Dorothy Bruce-Porter, twin daughter of Sir Bruce and Lady Bruce-Porter, to marry Mr. H. D. Bessmer on April 24.

The Duchess of Rutland, one of the prime movers in the National Bureau for the Deaf.

New Riviera Fashion.

I hear from Cannes—where the weather is just beginning to be really good—that there is a new dress vogue. Women wear their sports clothes, and only change at night. The sports clothes, it appears, are of the "super" sort—white frocks relieved with brilliant kerchiefs and tiny untrimmed felt hats.

Royal Artist.

The Bey of Tunis, the African potentate, who, it is reported, intends to visit Paris this year, is an accomplished artist. He has completed a portrait of the French Resident General in Tunis and also one of the French President, M. Millerand.

Famous American Airman.

Commander Towers, the newly-appointed assistant to the Naval Attaché at the U.S. Embassy, has come over to take up his new duties in London, which, he tells me, is almost like home to him. He was the commander of the Transatlantic flight in 1919, and is, of course, keenly interested in all that appertains to aviation.

Super-Tourists.

A friend who has just returned to London after being one of the 500 tourists who went on the super-cruise of the Homeric in the Mediterranean, tells me that most of the passengers bought large quantities of amber jewellery at Cairo. An interesting visitor who came to dinner at Constantinople was Kemal's brother—Kemal himself was on his honeymoon.

THE RAMBLER.

Miss Dorothy Dickinson, who has returned from St. Moritz to the east of "The Cabaret Girl" at the Winter Garden.

Mrs. Harold Lubbock, elder daughter of Lord Forster, to marry Mr. J. W. B. Poole on April 5.

PEACEFUL REVOLUTION!

Women Hunt "Masters" — Brightening London-Famous Boxer's Tour.

THE GREAT DEBATE on Socialism is to be varied this week by, among other things, a plea for the return of the shilling dinner for members of the House of Commons. Thus do extremes meet! Mr. Arthur Ponsonby, who is to press the matter of cheaper fare on the attention of the House, is no ordinary Labour member. Years ago he was a Page of Honour to Queen Victoria, and after he had been to Eton and Oxford he entered the Diplomatic Service. He now describes himself as a "peaceful revolutionary."

Last Night's Dance.

Lady Steel-Maitland has a daughter making her debut this season and in honour of her coming-out gave a dance last night. Miss Mary Steel-Maitland was eighteen last autumn and is the elder of two girls, the other, Frances, being about twelve. Later there is another important event in the family of Sir Arthur and Lady Steel-Maitland, namely, the majority of their elder son, Arthur, who is twenty-one in May. Formerly head of the Conservative organisation, Sir Arthur is now plain M.P. for Erdington.

An American Princess.

The rich American we used to know in London as Mrs. Stickney is, I hear, expected here shortly from America, en route for Paris, where she lives. The erstwhile Mrs. Stickney is now Princess A. de Lucinge, and a widow for the second time. One of New York's Four Hundred, with a big town residence and a lordly country place, Mrs. Stickney was sponsored here by Mrs. Ronalds and Lady Randolph Churchill and speedily became a great social success.

Peers' Birthdays.

Yesterday was the birthday of two famous peers—Viscount Knutsford and the Duke of Westminster, aged respectively sixty-eight and forty-four. Viscount Knutsford is, of course, the ever energetic head of the London Hospital, whose whole life is bound up in its great work of amelioration. The Duke of Westminster, one of our wealthiest peers, is famous the world over for his love of sport and adventure.

To Marseilles.

Lady Beatrice Wilkinson has left for Marseilles by sea and taken her 6ft. 4in. daughter with her. Lady Beatrice tells me the fifth thousand visitor has now inspected Sir Neville Wilkinson's wonderful doll's house, Titania's Palace.

Lady Bute Retires.

Lady Bute, who has been hunting the sporting Ayshire pack known as the Eglington, is giving up at the end of the season, her successor being Major T. Dunlop, of Ayr. An Irishwoman, who has followed hounds since she was a child, Lady Bute has maintained the best traditions of the Eglington, but the duties of a M.P.'s take up much time. She has a large family, of whom the eldest, Lady Mary Crichton-Stuart, will be one of next year's debutantes.

Mrs. Walter Faber.

Fernie's Hounds.

Two other women "Masters" of Foxhounds resigning, I hear, are Mrs. Fernie and Mrs. Walter Faber, who have been hunting jointly the fine pack with which the former's husband, the late Mr. C. W. B. Fernie, showed such splendid sport in the South Quorn country for many years. After her husband's death Mrs. Fernie decided to continue Fernie's, and she was joined in the "Mastership" by Mrs. Faber, who is also a great hunting woman.

The happy one is the elder one, though she doesn't look her age. Her eyes dance, her cheeks have the bloom of youth, she is the sunshine of the home.

Her secret is health. Hall's Wine keeps her blood rich, her nerves strong, and her whole system in perfect tone and harmony.

'Celanese' Supersedes Silk!

'Celanese' garments look like silk, hang like silk, wear like silk, and wash like silk, and added to these virtues is the glittering sheen that out-rides real silk in its beauty. 'Celanese' also guards you against atmospheric changes and varying climatic conditions, because it is a wonderful insulator. In winter it retains warmth, and in summer it repels exterior heat.

PIP, SQUEAK AND WILFRED

A Happy Family of Pets Whose Comical Adventures Are Famous Throughout the World

"LOCKED-OUT."

Daily Mirror Office.

MY DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,—

Most of you, I expect, have had the same experience as Pip and Squeak to-day—arriving home and finding everybody out, and then attempting to get in by one of the windows like a burglar! It is sometimes a very exciting experience, especially if the window is small and there is an awkward drop the other side!

On several occasions, when I have forgotten or mislaid the key, I have "burgled" the house in which I happened to live. Once, after climbing to a perilous height, I attempted to enter through a skylight, and somehow or other got wedged half-way! Only after what seemed hours of wriggling did I manage to get free—still outside the house, however.

It was on this particular occasion that, after deciding there was nothing to do but sit down and wait for somebody to arrive, I suddenly thought of my ticket pocket, and—there was the missing key!

Pip, by the way, asks me to apologise to all young "listeners-in" for not sending out a "wireless" back last Thursday, as he promised to do. The "wireless" transmitter, as you know, was on the stage of the Covent Garden Opera House, and we all felt rather shy of saying or doing anything very much with the glare of the footlights in our eyes.

I want to see a good budget of entries for our competitions this week. Remember that neatness is a great help towards getting a prize. Try and win some pocket money for Easter.

Your affectionate
Uncle Dick.

WHY IS CHARING CROSS?

London and the Questions Without Any Answers.

HAVE you ever wondered what makes Charing Cross? This is one of the silly nonsense riddles that Peter, a young neighbour of ours, asked me. London is a most mysterious city, according to Peter. "It's full of questions without any answers," he told me yesterday. "Now, why is Charing Cross, Uncle Dick?" I had to give it up—as you probably will! Then Peter asked me some more questions which the most learned professor in the world would be unable to answer.

"Is there a Savoy in Covent Garden?" he wanted to know. "And Cheapside ought to be 'Poplar' with the poor people, didn't it? Can the Black Friars fry Poultry? May you never take off your hat in Hutton Garden? Can Chel-see? Is there an Elephant and Castle in Oxford-circus, and do you have to pay to go in?"

"Look here, Peter," I said sternly. "I have heard quite enough—"

"Oh, but, Uncle Dick," cried Peter eagerly, "do tell me what made the Birdcage Walk. I've seen a bird walk, but never a birdcage! And why did Kensal Rise? Did it get on a hint from Hammer-smith? Did Bloomsbury treasure? And I have never found out what it is that Wormwood Scrubs!"

I jumped up from my desk at this point. "I won't listen to another single one, Peter!" I cried. "I shall feel quite ill if you make any more horrid puns! Go away and play somewhere else."

"All right, sir," said Peter meekly, as he edged towards the door. Then he turned round, shouted, "Why was Indragate 'Ill'? and disappeared hurriedly."

JOAN AND THE SNAKE.

I HAVE had a most thrilling letter from Joan Wallis Beer, who lives in India. She is only six, and, as India doesn't suit her very well, she is coming home this month. Perhaps she is on the way now.

"Dear Uncle Dick," she writes, "the worst thing I ever knew was one morning when we were having chota hazi (breakfast). Ayah (nurse) ran in to daddy, saying, 'Sahib, a snake—a snake!'"

"Daddy jumped out of bed and ran in his pyjamas with a stick. All the servants were on the verandah, with sticks, but they did not go near, like daddy. He hit it on the head and killed it. It was a koraik."

"I live in India, but am going home in March, as I get a lot of fever. I have a real Uncle Dick—a padre. I am six and a half years old. I do love Squeak."

Thank you for your letter, Joan. Squeak feels ever so flattered.

PIP WOULD NOT MAKE A GOOD BURGLAR!

1. The pets had returned from a walk, and found themselves locked out.

2. Pip boldly determined to climb into the house through one of the back windows.

3. Unfortunately, he found it almost impossible to climb up the sloping roof—

4.—and at last slipped, sending the tiles flying in all directions!

5. Splash! he went into the water-butt, and Squeak was nearly "knocked out."

6. Then Angeline appeared—and told them that the back door was open all the time!

Fortunately this Tablecloth won't stain—

It is made of stainless Damas-clone, which is also waterproof, and never needs laundering. When soiled a rub over first with a damp cloth then with a dry one, makes it snowy white again.

THE ROMANCE OF ANTIQUITY and ITS SPLENDOURS TOLD IN PHOTO, PICTURE and STORY.

The most superbly illustrated book ever printed.

WONDERS OF THE PAST

Edited by J. A. HAMMERTON

To be completed in 24 Fortnightly Parts. 1/3 per part.

The contents of Part 1 include

THREE SUPERB COLOUR PLATES

of the Treasure Tomb of

TUTANKH- AMEN

and a great wealth of photographs in black and white. In this part and succeeding parts the full story of the most sensational discovery of modern years will be told for the first time in permanent and beautiful form.

A COLOUR PLATE

showing (as it must have appeared when built) the tomb of Mausolus at Halicarnassus, with a long description of this gem of art so long numbered among the celebrated Seven Wonders of the World.

THE JUNGLE TEMPLES

of Angkor War, in Cambodia, brilliantly described by Edmund Candler, the famous traveller, and gorgeously illustrated. Many of these photographs of amazing ruins have never before been published.

THE WONDER CITY OF TIMGAD

in North Africa, the finest Roman remains in the world, described by the Editor, with pictures which include a photograph of panoramic view measuring 23 in. by 11 in. This plate alone is worth the price of the part.

These and many other features illustrating treasures of ancient art—together with a great wealth of superb photographs—go to make up Part 1 of a work of irresistible charm.

THIS new publication is not a dull historical record, but a vivid and sumptuously illustrated survey of the marvels of antiquarian research in all parts of the world. While of great value to the student, it has been written for the ordinary reader, to whom it will come as a revelation of the magnificence of many of the ancient civilizations and the astounding beauty of their cities, palaces, temples, monuments and works of art.

It is printed throughout on high-grade art paper. Its illustrations and colour plates are reproduced by the most perfect method, and when bound the work will form two handsome volumes of unequalled pictorial and literary interest.

HINDOO SECRET KILLS SUPERFLUOUS HAIR FOR EVER, ROOT AND ALL.

Army Officer's Widow Tells How She Eradicated Hair Growths After 20 Years' Failures.

ELECTRICITY ENTIRELY SUPERSEDED.

Remarkable Hindoo Secret, Revealed Through Officer's Bravery, Now Offered.

Through the generosity of Mrs. Frederica Hudson, widow of Major Hudson, a distinguished officer in the Indian Army, any lady can now secure quick and complete relief from the curse of Superfluous Hair. Through the bravery and heroism of her soldier husband, Mrs. Hudson obtained possession of a remarkable Hindoo secret, which authorities know has made superfluous hair a thing unknown among Indian women. Through this secret she got rid of her own growth after many things had failed; and now offers full information, free of all charge, to enable any other sufferer to do likewise.

MRS. HUDSON'S STORY OF DELIVERANCE AFTER ELECTRICITY AND ALL THINGS FAILED.

Here is Mrs. Hudson's story: For years I was sorely afflicted with a heavy, manly beard, a terrible tangle of beard, and a hideous hair covering on my arms. Like many others, I wasted a small fortune on the various preparations advertised, one of which made my growth all the worse. I was then submitted to the terrible electric needle, but found that for every hair thus destroyed at least two came back in its place.

"THE HINDOO RELIGION MAKES SUPERFLUOUS HAIR A RELIGIOUS CRIME."

My husband, when stationed in India, discovered (as anyone can verify from those who have been there) that Hindoo women are forbidden by their religion to have hair on any part of their body except their head. Even the faintest trace of hair on the chin or arms would for ever exclude a Hindoo woman. The Hindoo method of destroying hair, however, has always been a closely guarded secret, but just before his own death my husband saved the life of a convert, Natta Solah, and persuaded him to reveal the secret of the Hindoo hair-destroyer. My husband gave me the entire formula. I tried it.

IT POSITIVELY KILLED MY GROWTH. TO-DAY I HAVE NO TRACE.

The very first application made the hair weak and withering. In a few days the hair entirely disappeared, and since then I have never had a trace of hair to show. And so, having found that this remarkable remedy absolutely kills my hair, I now send you a tube of hair on my face, and the heavy covering on my arms from which I suffered twenty years' humiliation. I want every lady to have the benefit of the secret which my poor husband secured for me.

So write me to-day, sending me the Coupon below, or copy of it, together with your name and address (please state whether Mrs. or Miss), and three penny stamps to cover my outlay for postage, and I will send you free, full and complete instructions, so that you need never have any trace of superfluous hair to annoy you again for the rest of your life.

FREE COUPON. Good for immediate use only by readers of "The Daily Mirror" when sent with three penny stamps for postage.

Mrs. Hudson. Please send me free your full information and confidential instructions to banish superfluous hair.

Above Coupon, or copy of same, with your name and address and three penny stamps to cover my outlay for postage, send to: MRS. HUDSON, 100, Reg. 10, 9, Old Cavendish Street, London, W.1.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Mrs. Hudson belongs to a family high in Society and is the widow of a prominent Officer in the British Army, so you can write her with entire confidence. Address as above.

THE OXYGEN DEODORANT BAN-ODOR

(TRADE MARK).

Banishes any Body Odour and does it instantly.

The most convenient, economical, efficient and rapid-acting deodorant, also the most lasting in its effect.

Ban-odor acts immediately with the most antiseptic and purifying effect of oxygen. It renders impossible any offensive odour from perspiration or other causes.

Ban-odor is in stick form in dainty adjustable metal holder. This unique holder prevents waste and renders Ban-odor incomparably more convenient and economical than any cream, powder or liquid can be. Specially suitable for carrying in handbag or pocket.

The solution of the problem presented by offensive body odours (often unnoticeable except to others), or even by the possibility of their occurring, is so extremely simple that there is really no excuse for any embarrassment now. The subject need not concern in the slightest degree anyone who uses Ban-odor regularly.

One touch of Ban-odor—then no more embarrassment.

The dainty case of Ban-odor will be sent in plain wrapping post paid, on receipt of the price (1/9), or sufficient for a thorough test will be sent entirely free of cost if you just send a postcard to Dept. 24, Research Laboratories, 22, Euston Buildings, London, N.W.1.

LADIES' MIRROR

FOUR-IN-ONE LINGERIE—SUN RAYS ON SHOES.

OF course, it had to come—the chemi-cami-corset-knicker! More than one garment under some of the new frocks means a bulge, and the new dress commandment is "Thou shalt not bulge." They call it a corseto-pantalon, and as its two whalebones come in and out without any trouble, it can be washed just like the four garments.

A PUZZLE!

This will be something of a blow to the laundries, won't it? But only for a time! They'll invent a new reason for charging just as much for it as for the garments it replaces. They always do.

BACK AGAIN.

Sooner or later every old fashion crops up again. Young girls grandmothers remember wearing as girls the "new" wrap coat of tweed with its Inverness cape—only their's were really capes and ours are cape sleeves, which have the same effect, but are less heavy.

RIVALS.

Paisley, Paisley almost everywhere. It's the one great rival to Luxor. It appears as flounces on a dark frock, as pipings, as linings, as cuffs and collars, and kerchiefs!

COLOURS.

Some of the colour combinations for frocks are lovely. Sand and Nile green, Nile green and louse distance blue, mummy wrapping brown and sunset red—these are favourite combinations.

FOR DAY FROCKS.

Grey and yellow seem to appear frequently for day frocks. A crepe de Chine in grey and yellow stripes with a yellow kerchief and a big grey felt hat with yellow beads on it looks well on a red-headed girl.

SUN rays on frocks appear in every conceivable bead, embroidery and paint—and now sun ray shoes have arrived. White suede sandal shoes have black patent leather straps sun rayed to an ankle-strap, and patent leather shoes have white stitchings in the same form. At a dance the other night Miss Lois Sturt was wearing black satin shoes with diamond sun rays from the toes.

BIZARRE.

You must be extraordinary if you are to be successful—but beware! However extraordinary you are, you mustn't shout it to the assembled throng, but indicate it delicately. One hand-painted medallion on a simple "little girl" frock, one small string of beads on a plain felt hat—yes! But if you overdo it people will murmur disparagingly "Chelsea."

CHELSEA-ISM!

Of course, you may like the Chelsea label. If so, get yourself a striped frock of contrasts and a very, very wide felt hat and a string of enormous beads to wind round the crown with huge earrings to match.

MONOGRAMS.

The little shield pocket with a monogram worked on it makes all the difference to a simple over-blonse. The shield is outlined with silk stitcheries, and the monogram can be as undecipherable as you please, since it's not good form to shout your initials to the casual eye.

HANKIES.

If you don't want to be bothered with making a blouse, you can embroider one corner of a little silk or cambric hanky with the monogram, and let the corner fall, flap fashion, over the edge of the ordinary pocket.

LINER NEWSBOYS.

"Paper, Sir?" Call to Greet Ocean Travellers.

BROADCASTING NEWS.

So far Australia has been backward in the matter of wireless news-broadcasting, but Amalgamated Wireless (Australasia), Ltd., has now made a move, and will go ahead until travellers at sea will awake to the cheery call of "Paper, sir!"

Then passengers will be able to read the very latest news in bed each morning.

A high power broadcasting station, it is believed, will be erected at a suitable point on the coast in preference to a site in one of the principal cities.

Arrangements will be made with newspapers and news agencies, says Reuter, to supply the power station with the latest news from all parts of the world up till midnight. A selection will then be made and immediately broadcasted.

Both overseas and inter-state steamship companies will be invited to subscribe to the scheme, and only those vessels whose owners are subscribers will be permitted to publish the broadcasted news.

SURRENDERED TO POLICE

Butler Who Vanished Accused of Theft of Jewels Worth £327.

There was a sequel yesterday to the disappearance of a Butler and a quantity of valuable jewellery from a Scarborough residence. Alfred John Lucas (twenty-eight), a smart-looking young man, who had given himself up to the police in London, being remanded for a week on the charge of having stolen jewellery and money, valued altogether at £327, from Miss Elsie Foster.

Chief Constable Windsor stated that Lucas had been employed as a Butler by Mr. Foster. He disappeared and jewellery and money were missed. Nine pawnbrokers in London had received portions of the jewellery in pledge. They, however, had not given information to the police, and had it not been that Lucas surrendered to the Metropolitan Police and gave all the information he could, he would not have been in custody, and the property would not have been recovered.

Correction.—Colonel T. F. Waterhouse, D.S.O., who was sent for trial last week on a charge of fraud, was inaccurately described as "formerly clerk to the Northampton justices," instead of "Wolverhampton," where the charge was heard.

BRONZE AGE GRAVE.

2,000-Year-Old Discovery by Scottish Farmer.

URN BESIDE SKULL.

A grave believed to be 2,000 years old has been discovered by a farmer digging for sand at Catterline, Kincardineshire.

He came upon the grave at a depth of four feet. First there was a peculiarly marked slab, then two other slabs, and two still larger ones underneath.

When one of the latter was removed a full-size skeleton was revealed, with an urn placed beside the skull. The floor of the grave was covered with pebbles.

An antiquarian who examined the remains declared the discovery to be that of a typical Bronze Age burial at least 2,000 years ago. An expert from the National Museum, Edinburgh, is examining the grave and skeleton.

FAIRYLAND "PREMIER."

Man Throws Chocolates and Cigars at People in Street.

A well-dressed man sat on a seat in High-street, Bromley, with a box of chocolates and cigars beside him on Sunday night, and threw the contents at passers-by.

He declared himself to be the Prime Minister, and was taken to the police station.

After a night in a cell he was removed to the Bromley Infirmary Hospital and placed in the observation ward.

He is well-spoken, and is believed to be an ex-officer suffering from shellshock.

DUKE OF LEINSTER.

Arrival in England—To Compete in New York—Covew Ketch Race.

The Duke of Leinster, whose impending arrival from America was referred to in the London Bankruptcy Court proceedings last week, reached Liverpool yesterday morning on the White Star liner Cedric.

The Duke, whose name did not appear in the passenger list, stated that the ketch race from New York to Cowes and back, in which he is a competitor, would begin about the middle of June.

More Smallpox.—Smallpox cases at Clowne (Derbyshire) number seventy-seven, three fresh cases being recorded yesterday.

NERVOUS HEADACHES PREVENTED

Miss E. Rouledge writes: "During the war I was engaged in making fuses, and this work on munitions amongst all sorts of chemicals upset my health considerably. I had a bad attack of Gastritis and had to go to hospital. After lengthy treatment, however, I could not seem to get properly better until my mother, who had found it useful to her, brought me some Phosferine. I now find that it keeps me well after treatment instead of letting me go back to ill-health as I used to do every little while. I am now engaged in domestic work, and your tonic enables me to carry my duties out without having to 'lay up,' either with nervous headaches to which I was subject, nor do I ever catch cold. I can recommend it to any woman who wants to keep well to do her domestic work at home. Anyone interested in my experience of Phosferine may be referred to me."

Parents find that Phosferine is peculiarly adapted to children of a pale, or weakly physique, and to those outgrowing their strength. Two drops, night and morning, tend to brace up the whole system, restore colour to the cheeks, firmness to the flesh, renew the appetite and encourage a vigorous and healthy growth, and at the same time fortify the body against attacks of illness. It is also invaluable to women beset with household worries and family cares.

THE MYSTERY HUSBAND

By A. J. RUSSELL

Eve Sturdee.

NEW READERS BEGIN HERE.

EVE STURDEE, a sweet and impulsive woman who finds her fullest expression in love, has married Ronald Sturdee, her village sweetheart, who has become one of the famous impresarios in London. He is a man who has discovered the great singer Navana.

Ronald is a complex character who seems to love and unemotional to his wife, although he is all to her that a husband should be. Despite themselves, the feelings of restraint develop between them which even the two children that are born to them fail to bridge.

Eve strives to be tremendously helpful to her husband and assists him through a financial crisis. Yet he apparently takes all for granted and she can only decide his future in a haphazard way.

Awakening comes to him, without her knowledge, by a tempestuous flirtation with a fascinating little mixer, Fritz Davies. Later he declares his love to her, but she will not avow that the feeling is reciprocated. He finds out at last that she has merely been using him as a copy for a novel, and finishes with her for good and all.

Slowly Ronald is beginning to appreciate the true quality of his wife. He arranges to take an opera company on a world tour and entrusts to Eve the carrying on of his business during his absence.

Eve encounters financial difficulties, and is forced to apply to a moneylender to loan a sum of money.

The man who eventually lends her the money—Frank Rawlinson by name—is a quixotic character, who helps her because he is sorry for her. Eve's friends in love with him. He is wholly honourable, and goes abroad as soon as her husband returns. The liner on which he embarks founders, and Rawlinson perishes.

Later Eve befriends a hard-up doctor, Richard Milligan, and appoints him as her medical attendant. Ronald is thereafter so sure of himself that his wife's affections are for anyone but himself.

CAPRICIOUS WOMAN.

SEVERAL days elapsed before Ronald had the opportunity of a confidential chat with Richard Milligan. The ex-doctor was often at the flat, but he was wont to get up and depart as soon as Ronald entered.

But one evening when he rose to leave Ronald joined Eve in pressing him to stay.

Eve retired early, leaving the impresario and the ex-doctor in earnest conversation. At first Richard Milligan seemed loth to talk of himself, but Ronald diplomatically drew out of him by degrees he expected from him a sketchy account of many other incidents in his past.

"Why did you take to the medical profession?" Ronald asked.

A look of pity appeared on Milligan's face.

"When I was a boy I nursed a sick man—my uncle—for three years. It was that experience and my uncle's gratitude that made me fall in love with the grandest profession in the world—healing. When the General Medical Council deprived me of my diploma for helping a school chum, they did something more serious than taking away my livelihood—they prevented me from serving my fellow-men as God intended me to serve them."

That night Ronald asked himself: "Is this man the model of correctness Eve declares and his actions affirm?"

The thought came to Ronald to watch Dick and Eve together, but he banished it instantly. No, not that. He could never play the spy on his own wife. Was it not obvious that the man over whom she has now bent her head was one who had been purified by suffering? What mattered it, then, if only Eve benefited by his society and was soon restored to normal health? Of course, she would recover. But supposing one day he found her in Milligan's arms?

It was a terrible business. Reason seemed to say that he was acting rightly. Intuition said the same. His friends would probably say he was acting like an idiot. How would all end? Would Eve be spending the rest of her life falling in and out of love?

There came a day when reason and intuition were brought into sharp conflict—Eve's birthday, the day on which he had promised to send her half of the proceeds of his Australian tour—two thousand five hundred pounds.

Business was bad. His most recent London concerts had been musical successes but financial failures. Two thousand five hundred pounds taken from his bank would leave the business in a parlous state. He explained the situation to Eve, and vainly looked for sympathetic understanding.

All the stronger reason why you should keep your promise, instead of trying, as I knew you would try, to shuffle out of it," declared Eve uncompromisingly. "The business was doing well when you took over; if it's in low water again it's your fault entirely."

It was always the same. Everything that he did was wrong. He was selfish, incompetent, irresponsible, quixotic—everything that he shouldn't be. He had only to advance an idea and Eve would use it to attack him.

Dared he hand such a large amount of money to his wife? Once he would have entrusted her with everything. Now he was uncertain. The new Eve, the capricious wife, who was affecting the part of the modern woman—a part which she was the least qualified to play—could not be depended upon to act as she used to act in an emergency.

In previous years he had only to breathe a word of financial difficulty, and she was ready to lay all at his feet. Now she was determined to take not only what was in his pockets, but in his bank, even though her rapacity brought his business to bankruptcy. Carefully avoiding inflammatory words, he re-emphasised his position.

tion. She listened, at first impatiently, then with an approach to sympathetic understanding. "You know that I will always help you," she declared, a tiny spark of the old Eve noticeable once more.

He caught at it. "I wish I could feel sure," he said. "Why do you want the money?"

Here she flared up again. "I want it," she declared, a tiny spark of the old Eve noticeable once more.

"It's mine!—I've earned it. You said so yourself. I want it in my bank as security against another of your periodical failures."

They were standing on the roof of their flat. A couple of hundred feet below was the common courtyard. There swept over him a wave of hot anger against this woman who repulsed his every emotion, who misconstrued everything he said or he thought.

Abruptly he turned from her and walked the full circle of the roof, thinking hard. In turning he saw that she had seated herself on the coping of the low wall.

As he came back to her, she said, "I'm still waiting for you to honour your promise!"

Ronald descended to his den. A few minutes later he returned and placed a pink paper slip in his wife's hand.

"There you are, Eve," he said. "Two thousand five hundred pounds."

Eagerly Eve took the cheque and examined it carefully. Then she fell into a reverie.

"I have you nothing to say to me, Eve!" she said to the patient persistence of his question with a start.

"Yes, Ron," she said vaguely. "Thank you. It will come in useful. Yes—very useful."

THE BREAK.

BOTH Ronald Sturdee and Richard Milligan spent more of their time at Russell Court-mansions.

The "doctor" was an interesting talker, and with each conversation Ronald's unwilling liking for him increased. He who had first gently remonstrated with his wife for calling his medical adviser by a nickname now used "Dick" himself.

After Eve had retired to bed one night Ronald spoke a little more openly than was his wont with "Dr." Milligan.

"Dick," he said, "I can't help seeing things."

For a second Dick seemed to miss Ronald's quiet challenge.

"You mean—?" he began.

"My wife—Eve. I can't help noticing her manner towards you."

Milligan was immediately all sympathy.

"My dear fellow, of course you see things. I have wondered why you have not spoken before. I have thought—"

"Look here, Dick, you know that a husband doesn't proclaim a change in his wife's affection from the house-tops. His wife is sacred—secret!"

"My dear Ronald," Dick Milligan leaned forward in his chair and looked Ronald steadily in the eye. "To me your wife is sacred, on my word as a gentleman. That she has a liking for me is plain to us both—there is no reason to deny it. But I cannot help it. Only it makes my position all the more difficult."

"Believe me, from the first day I came until now, I have played the game. Unfortunately your wife had lost interest in you before I came. That also is not in dispute. But again I am not to blame. Nevertheless I am at your service. I will go away if you think fit. I've thought to go without being asked."

Ronald did not answer for a moment. Dick was playing the man; unquestionably he was playing the man. Moreover, Dick was irrefutably right when he said that Eve was not in love with her husband when he first appeared on the scene.

No, he could not honestly accuse Dick of stealing his wife's affections. They had not been stolen. They had been lost to him before ever Dick or his predecessor, Frank Rawlinson, appeared to cause domestic discord at Russell Court Mansions. For the past Ronald was alone to blame.

"Dick, what is your attitude to my wife? You haven't told me that."

Dick's face lit up.

"I admire your wife more than any other woman," he said enthusiastically. "She's been most kind and sympathetic. She saw how I was suffering, how far down I had gone, and she did her best to help me. And in return I have done my best to help her back to health."

"Is that all?" Dick inclined his head.

"That's all, Ronald," he said, "except that I shall never forget your wife's kindness. If I can be of service to her or hers at any time during the rest of my life, I shall be only too happy to do everything humanly possible."

He struck the table. "I would have gone already, only your wife begged me to stay. If I'd disobeyed—well, the Fates might have been crueler to you." Dick concluded with a meaning gesture.

It was true, bafflingly true, Ronald thought. He could not blame this unfortunate man, Dick, too, was behaving in the only way open to a man of honour. But if Dick were only fond of Eve, he might be drawn to look to him as the solution of this monstrous domestic problem.

Dick was wearing, he now noticed, a new suit of dark brown, which became him well. Ronald grudgingly admitted to himself that Dick Milligan was one of the handsomest men he had ever met, a man who, if he chose to play the mean part, could be a highly successful "lady-killer."

Recently a new gold chain had appeared on Dick's waistcoat; more recently Dick had become possessed of a smart gold-mounted walking-stick. Evidently, Dick's financial affairs were on the upgrade.

Ronald concluded that these signs of prosperity were the result of an extended "practice." Of late Dick had not spent so much time in attendance upon Eve. Perhaps Eve had found him more secret patients among her lady friends. It would be like Eve to go to the greatest trouble to help this unfortunate ex-doctor.

Anyway, thought Ronald, it was not his affair. He had enough worries of his own without troubling about the improved financial status of Richard Milligan.

A few evenings later Ronald returned home to find that both Eve and Joyce were out; the maid had no knowledge of the whereabouts of either.

Ronald settled himself down to enjoy a new novel, and was half-way through before Eve appeared. As Ronald rose to greet her he noticed an ominous brightness in his eyes. His greeting passed unnoticed.

"Ronald, I want to know. How dare you talk to Dick about me as you've been talking?"

Ronald stepped back a pace in surprise. "What I said to Dick I said in confidence. Has he broken my confidence?"

She stamped her foot.

"No. Of course he hasn't. Do you think I don't know without Dick telling me? I can tell by his face, his new manner."

Here was another bone of contention, Ronald thought.

"I simply asked Dick what was his attitude towards you," he said. "After all, I'm your husband. I was entitled to ask that."

"You had no right to speak to him at all."

She went to her room and removed her hat and wrap.

Presently she came back to announce: "See here, Ron, my mind is made up at last. This state of things must end. It will kill me if it doesn't. I can't endure this place with you another week. Either you go away or let me—"

Ronald gave a long sigh of unutterable relief.

"All right, Eve," he said, and went on calmly: "What of the children? I suppose we take one each."

For a second Eve was taken aback. She had hardly expected such a ready agreement to her reckless request to separate.

"How can you look after a child?" she asked, a little mortified. "Besides, they are both so happy together. Even you wouldn't be so cruel as to part them!"

Ronald felt his eyes moistening.

"No, Eve, I won't do that. So it means that you have both?"

"Of course!"

"Very well; I shall leave you on Monday next, if I can fix up bachelor apartments by then."

"Don't make it any later, if you can help it. You must see, too, that we have an adequate allowance."

"Good—"

He checked himself. "But, Eve, I gave you a large amount of money last week."

"You mean you handed me my own money. Please remember that though, after a lot of argument, you paid me what was only rightly due to me, you still have a duty as a husband. You must keep me and the children decently."

"The man who wins the hand of the new Eve has my complete sympathy," thought Ronald at this moment.

Eve was to give Ronald more surprise before he said good-bye to Russell Court-mansions. It was Monday—the day of the voluntary separation.

"I have lost my key of the flat," Eve announced at the end of a melancholy breakfast. "Which means," Ronald rejoined, "that you want mine."

Eve's eyes did not lift from the tablecloth. Her silence said "Yes."

Without another word, Ronald removed a Yale from his bunch of keys, placed it on Eve's plate, kissed her cold forehead, and passed into the nursery to give a farewell hug to Norman and Joy.

Joyce left the children and accompanied Ronald to the door. He kissed her good-bye. Joyce was crying.

"Thank God it's over," he said fervently as the lift carried him and his bag to the ground level.

Another fine instalment will appear tomorrow.

SURPRISE FOR HUSBAND

Wife Who Spoke Co-Respondent's Name on Waking.

Mr. Harold Hope, a paper manufacturer's manager, of Barnsley, related in the Divorce Court yesterday a shock he got in the night when his wife seized his arm and said: "What time is it, Kelsey?" Kelsey was the Christian name of the co-respondent, a Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Hope said that in 1921 he took rooms for his wife at Southport, while he remained working at Barnsley.

He went there rather unexpectedly and, finding his wife was not there, he traced her to her sister's flat, where Mr. Johnson also had rooms. After the bedroom incident described she refused to let him see her letters, and they quarrelled over the co-respondent.

"Witness found a note from his wife pinned to the pillow. It ran: "Dear Harold, I have gone to try and find Johnson. Now you will be happy, Nellie."

There was no defence, and Mr. Justice Horridge granted petitioner a decree nisi with costs. Counsel said a claim for damages was withdrawn.

The Premier announced yesterday that the House of Commons would adjourn for the Easter recess on Thursday, March 22, and re-assemble on Monday, April 9.

POMROY TO DIE.

Man Who Killed Girl in Taxicab Loses Appeal.

INSANITY PLEA FAILS.

After hearing further evidence, the Court of Criminal Appeal yesterday dismissed the appeal of Bernard Pomroy, who was sentenced to death for murdering a domestic servant, named Alice Cheshire, in a taxicab.

Pomroy, with his shirt open at the neck, was present in the dock.

Mr. Sherborne said at the trial Pomroy refused to be represented by counsel, and when his brother desired to make a statement about his past, Pomroy refused to have the statement made.

In fact, so peculiar was his behaviour that counsel asked the Court to conclude that Pomroy was insane.

Counsel said Mr. Justice Horridge at the trial should have allowed the brother to make the statement. Would the Court now call Pomroy's brother, counsel asked.

The Lord Chief Justice: Very well, you can call that evidence.

Harold Pomroy, a clerk, of Hemel Hempstead, said, as a child, his brother had convulsions and convulsions, and later fits. He was severely wounded in the war.

In December, 1922, he wrote a letter to his mother saying he was maddened by being continually called "Sonny," when his Christian name was Bernard.

"You will have my dead body to entertain at Christmas," the letter added. "Here am I, twenty-five years of age, and still you call me 'Sonny.' A cursed calling! It is too humiliating, and it preys upon my mind day and night. It is not my fault that you nominate me as baby, which is so degrading."

Mr. Justice Avory: He says he is too old to be called "Sonny." That is all.

Attempt—Hospital Safe Stolen.

What appears to have been a daring attempt to set fire to a West End garage is reported by Scotland Yard.

Shortly before dusk a respectably dressed man was seen to place a bundle of wood and paper beneath the door of a motor garage in Bolsover-street, Tottenham Court-road. He then lighted a cigarette, dropped the match on to the paper, and walked away.

Fortunately a page-boy employed at the Orthopaedic Hospital, saw the man and promptly extinguished the flames.

By forcing a window, thieves entered St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, and carried off the safe, which contained £204 in Treasury notes, some cash, and National Health Insurance and unemployment stamps.

Don't use the Whip on Tired Nerves —it means trouble.

When the day's work is hard, you can't make it easier by whipping tired nerves. Ask any doctor for the facts.

You can't overdraw energy without paying.

Tea and coffee contain the nerve-stimulating drug, caffeine. When either is used to overcome fatigue, it means whipping the tired nerves into a run.

You may seem to get added strength—but there's a settlement coming for an overdrawn account.

Rest is the cure for fatigue. Health is the equipment for hard tasks.

Rest and health are interfered with when nerves are over-stimulated.

You've seen plenty of proof. How many people do you know who say, "I must go slow on tea and coffee; they keep me awake at nights?"

How is it in your own case? Have you counted rest-less night hours after the evening cup of tea or coffee? For a hot, comforting beverage, drink Instant Postum and let nerves have their natural rest.

There's charm without harm in Instant Postum—a delightful, satisfying cereal beverage: rich, seal brown in colour, delicious in flavour and aroma and containing nothing that can irritate nerves or disturb health. Instant Postum is safe and enjoyable for every member of the family, and is the perfect hot drink for children—friendly to young stomachs and absolutely safe for young nerves.

The road to health is a good road for anybody to follow.

A Nurse has written:

"CICFA"

CURED MY

INDIGESTION

TWO YEARS AGO.

IT WAS A WONDERFUL CURE.

EVER SINCE THEN I HAVE EATEN WHATEVER I PLEASED."

BEFORE you read the Nurse's words, let us explain that as she is a nurse she had every opportunity of securing the best possible remedies for her Indigestion; but she became worse, and was compelled at last to cease attending patients, and give up her work. This was a serious matter. It is easy to imagine that she made every effort to secure a remedy which would cure her.

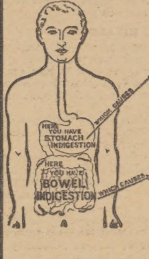

Then she heard of Cicfa and tried it.
She was so surprised that she called Cicfa "WONDERFUL." Why is it wonderful? Simply because it supplies exactly what Nature requires to ensure perfect digestion of all the Albuminous food in the Stomach and all the Starchy food in the Bowel. The Biliousness is corrected,
Fermentation ceases, so there is no Acidity,
no Flatulence, no Constipation, but increasing health and strength. Very soon no further assistance is required. There is not merely relief, Digestion is restored.

Two years later she wrote us that she had eaten whatever she liked, yet her digestion had been perfect. She feels well and strong, and she enjoys her work and her food. She is right in calling Cicfa "wonderful." Cicfa is unlike any other remedy, because it re-establishes normal functioning
all down the alimentary tract.

Cicfa goes to the root cause of the Indigestion. It ensures a proper supply, at the right times and in the right places, of those digestive materials which Nature requires to ensure complete digestion of the Albuminous food in the Stomach, and the

The Nurse says:

"Dear Sirs,—I am writing to say that Cicfa cured me, and that it was a wonderful cure. Two years ago I had indigestion, which was so bad that I could not take any cases, and had to give up my work. I sent for a sample, and after that I took three

NINETY-NINE HORSES OPEN FLA RACING AT LINCOLN

Outsider Keeps Up Tradition in First Race.

J. JARVIS' DOUBLE.

West Ham Qualify to Meet Derby County in English Cup.

Lincoln opened the flat-racing season in delightful-weather yesterday. Although on the soft side, the going was much better than might have been expected after the recent heavy rains. As usual, fields were big, and no fewer than ninety-nine horses were seen under silk in a capital afternoon's sport. Other features of the day were:—

Racing.—J. Jarvis brought off a double event with Saucy Girl filly and Finnarts Bay, both ridden by Elliott.

Football.—West Ham won their English Cup tie with Southampton at Birmingham, and England beat Belgium at Highbury.

LINCOLN LATEST.

Idumea Fancied for the Bathynany —Smart Brocklesby Youngsters.

By BOUVIERE.

The preliminary skirmish over, Lincoln settles down to more sedate racing this afternoon—a sort of a lull before the storm of Lincolnshire day.

Beyond a notion that Royal Alarm will see a much shorter price than 20 to 1 before to-morrow afternoon, that Roman Bachelor greatly pleased in his latest gallop with Poisoned Arrow, and that George Drake will most likely accompany Psychology to the post, there was little new to be heard in connection with the big race.

I have a great regard for the chance of Roman Bachelor, and although there are a multitude of tips for the race, I doubt if I shall

SELECTIONS FOR LINCOLN.

2.30.—HILL COUNTRY.	3.45.—IDUMEA.
3.10.—VOLAGES.	4.15.—POMAL.

DOUBLE EVENT FOR TODAY.

HILL COUNTRY AND IDUMEA.

Look beyond the top-weight when making a final selection.

Surcoat will endeavour to win the Bathynany Plate for the third year in succession this afternoon, and Lord Durham's consistent horse is so well just now that he is sure to go close.

SURCOAT'S RIVALS.

Wild Mint and Nabob are also well fancied, and so is Idumea, who, my Newmarket correspondent assures me, has done splendidly on a special preparation. She was a most improved filly last back end, and might easily prove the best thing on to-day's card.

As the well-tried Thunderstone gelding waits for Liverpool, Volages will probably start favourite and win the Brocklesby Stakes.

Mrs. Whitburn's colt has the reputation at Lambourn of being a real flier, but there are several other highly tried youngsters in the race, notably Grand Excel, Solar Eclipse and Damage colt.

Hill Country is confidently expected to win the Blankney Plate. He missed an engagement on the first day to run here, and is certainly a bit above selling plate.

COURSE AND TRAINING NEWS.

Points from Tattersall's, the Track and the Paddock.

Carslake will not ride at Lincoln.
G. Walsh rides Port Royal in the Lincolnshire.
Gerald I will not run in the Grand National.

Monarch does run in the Lincoln, and J. Childs rides. This is on the authority of Sir Henry Bird.

Emulsion, Chaplin Plate to-day, ran last year in the Royal Balm gelding. He has recently won a trial.

Now that George Lowe has been taken out of the Lincolnshire, Harper can still be represented by Psychology and George Drake.

Last year Mr. James White publicly tipped Granby to win the first big handicap. His "selection" for to-morrow's race is Tons of Money.

Newmarket opinion is that Argo was asked to do something big in his trial on Saturday, and that he will be the best from headquarters for the Lincolnshire.

Lines' horses are nicely forward, as Polista showed yesterday. Her stable companion, Glenholton, is fancied a little for the Sudbrook Plate to-day.

Westmead continues to make new friends for to-morrow's big race, but from a bit from hurdling and has beaten Humpty Dumpty, Granby a trial horse of a year ago, in a test spin.

A. Balafray who won on Desmond House at the Lincoln meeting yesterday.

JARVIS AND ELLIOTT AGAIN.

Last Year's Opening Double Repeated at Lincoln's First Stage.

History repeated itself to a remarkable degree at the first stage of flat racing at Lincoln yesterday.

An outsider in Maiden's Mirror won the first race just as did Gentlemen a year ago. Jack Jarvis and his jockey Elliott brought off a double in the same two races they captured last season, and Walter Griggs again had his "hope" for the Trial Plate beaten into second place.

Saucy Girl filly, a nice-looking youngster, gave Jarvis his first winner in the Selling Plate, and Finnarts Bay completed the double by beating Vic's Choice and a big field in the Welbeck Handicap. Donoghue had the mount on Boscombe, but the colt was not so well backed as either Vic's Choice or the winner, and he was never in the race with a chance. Finnarts Bay was in front practically from start to finish.

H. Leach, known to his intimates as Chubby, was the lucky jockey on Marden's Mirror. He always had his mount in a nice place, and taking the lead at half way, beat the outsider Polista by three-quarters of a length.

Donoghue opened his winning account on Groomsport in the Hainton Plate, and as Conlaw's hurdler started a warm favourite it is needless to add that the victory was highly popular.

Planning Sword was regarded to be the danger, and he followed the winner home in front of Psychology's stable companion Recess. This was Groomsport's first success on the flat since winning at the Curragh last May.

BOUVIERE.

LEIGH'S NARROW WIN.

Oldham Unfortunate and Lose by a Point on Their Own Ground.

Leigh gained a very narrow victory in their Rugby League game with Oldham yesterday. The home side, however, were unfortunate, as they had to play through the greater part of the second half minus the help of Knappan (injured).

Blanche scored first for Leigh, but Beynon scored a try for Oldham which Knappan converted. Taylor added a further try for Leigh, and the goal-kick failing, the visiting side just won by a point.

BOAT RACE PRACTICE.

Oxford's Record Time from Hammersmith to Chiswick Steps.

Oxford rowed from Hammersmith Bridge to Chiswick Steps yesterday in 3m. 55s. This is 2s. under the record by the Cambridge crew in 1889 and again in 1911.

A crew of watermen who call themselves the "Water Rats" joined in at about the Training Ship, taking half a length's start. Oxford rowed very fast with a strong following wind and nice water, and they beat the professionals to the Steps by a length.

HORSES FOR COURSES.

The following horses engaged at Lincoln to-day were over the course last year:—

Blankney Plate.—TELEPATHY.
Bathynany Plate.—SURCOAT.
Northern Welter.—JUST FOR LUCK.

BIG RACE PRICES.

Lincolnshire.—15.2 Tons of Money (o. 8 t.), 9 Port Royal (o. 10 t.), 100.9 Roman Bachelor (o. 12 t.), 100.8 Argo (o. 10 t.), 100.7 Viraldi (o. 100.8 Westward (o. 6 t.), 26 Black and (o. 6 t.), 22 Precious and Royal Alarm (o. 6 t.), 28 Tomahawk (o. 6 t.), 35 Monarch (t. o.).

McTIGUE NOT CHAMPION.

Siki Did Not Weigh In at the Cruiser-Weight Limit.

Siki did not lose his world's light-heavy-weight championship as well as his European heavy-weight championship by his defeat at the hands of Mike McTigue.

He did not weigh in at Saturday night, but we were told nothing of it at the ringside. Doubtless the proclamation of the fight by the rebels had something to do with this state of affairs, for there is no doubt Siki could have done the weight all right.

He looked a much smaller man than Beckett and Carpenter, but it was owing to his refusal that the weight was not taken I should imagine that the International Boxing Union will have another Siki card before long.

I cannot understand the diversity of opinion about the result. If boxing and ringcraft count for anything against a mere slugging attack, allied to a certain amount of defensive cleverness, then McTigue won all the way.

Many of McTigue's taps with the left hand, which was often extended and not closer, of course, did not count for points, but he did enough with the closed glove to win him the fight.

McTigue is, of course, European heavy-weight champion. A fight at catch-weights would give him that. And as to the other matter, there is bound to be a lot of talk as to why I can see it is the only hitch in arrangements carried out admirably by Mr. Tom Singleton under extraordinary difficulties.

P. J. M.

PAGNAM'S FINE SHOOTING.

Watford Centre Forward Top Goal-Scorer in the League.

The leading goal-scorers in the English League to date are as follows:—

Division I.—Buchan (Sunderland), 22; J. Broad (Stoke) and Roberts (Preston North End), 21 each; Elliott (Middlesbrough), 20; Paterson (Sunderland), Turnbull (Arsenal) and Barnes (Manchester City), each; J. Smith (Bolton Wanderers) and Bradford (Birmingham), 17 each; Chambers and Forsyth (Liverpool), 16 each.

Division II.—Bedford (Blackpool), 26; Toms (Coventry City), Bunick (Bury) and Duncan (Leicester City), 15 each; Parker (Rotherham) and Green (Stockport), 16 each; Barraes (Blackpool), 16.

Division III. (S.).—Pagnam (Watford), 28; Smith (Swansea Town), 22; Goodwin (Southend United), 19; Fairclough (Bristol City), 18; Martin (Abercrombie) and Johnson (Swindon Town) and Morris (Millwall), 15 each.

Division III. (N.).—Eddlestone (Nelson), 19; Carmichael (Grimsby Town), 17; Beal (Chesterfield) and Robertson (Aston), 16 each.

MISS WETHERED FOR U.S.

British Woman Golf Champion to Compete in American Championship.

Miss Joyce Wethered, the British woman golf champion, has decided to visit the United States to compete in the American women's championship next autumn, according to information received in New York, says Reuter.

Following the decision of Miss Glenna Collett, the American lady champion, to abandon her plans to go to England this year, Miss Wethered's proposed visit has revived interest in the possibility of a test of skill between the rival champions.

NATIONAL GOLF HANDICAPS.

Prominent Sportsmen Included in R. and A. Club's Third List.

The names of several golfers prominent in other realms of sport are included in the third list of national handicaps which has just been issued by the Championship Committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews.

The lowest mark on this list is 2, and among those who have been rated thus are R. W. Crumnick, an English international at hockey, who has also played Soccer for Millrose, as well as winning the Lancashire amateur golf championship three, Geoffrey MacCallum and S. Robinson, of Southampton, who leapt into fame at the amateur championship last year when he defeated E. H. Tolley, S. H. Fry and E. Blackwell.

The Rev. Peter Gannon, who has probably won more Continental championships and held the records of more Continental courses than any other player, is on the 3 mark, as is J. H. S. Gannon, a well-known trainer of racehorses.

WEST HAM THROUGH.

Saints Beaten in Second Replay After a Hard Game.

ONE GOAL DECIDES ISSUE.

At the third attempt to settle their fourth-round Cup tie West Ham just overcame Southampton at Villa Park, Birmingham, a goal in the second half by Barker giving the Londoners the right to oppose Derby County in the semi-final. Southampton were represented by the same side as before, but West Ham were strengthened by the return of Kay to the centre half position in place of Carter.

"SUNDAY PICTORIAL" NAP.

During the flat racing season "Stonehenge" the best thing of the day will be indicated in The Daily Mirror by code. Today's nap is IHBZTQDOVV. The code, which will be changed each week, appears in the Sunday Pictorial.

The Londoners started off well and were the first to attack, but Southampton forwards were soon in evidence, and only very vigorous tackling by the West Ham defenders repelled a splendid combined onslaught.

The Hammers' left wing spelt danger, but Parker relieved, and a free kick enabled the Saints to gain breathing space, though the very next minute there was a dangerous move right in the goalmouth.

Treaders defended brilliantly during an attack by the Saints, for whom Dornay was very prominent, and at the other end, after a few minutes, Ruffell went very near to scoring for the Londoners.

Southampton's forwards were a fast moving line and frequently dangerous. Brown centred nicely for Rawlings to drive in a low shot. A Parker follow-up, but managed to recover in time to clear. Dornay retired hurt in a collision, but resumed after a few minutes and an ineffective but highly interesting struggle ensued to the interval.

With the sun facing them, West Ham got away nicely, but Ruffell was not in the game. Watson almost let Moore through, while Ruffell kicked out when his side was well placed. West Ham played with determination, but Watson more than once finished weakly.

Southampton retaliated, and during a long spell of attack bombarded their opponents' goal. The shooting generally was weak.

West Ham broke away at the end of seventy-two minutes' play, and from a free kick Brown dashed up and literally forced the ball into goal between Parker and Lock. Elkes subsequently made a grand effort but lacked support; otherwise the Saints might have had more than one success.

The attendance was 22,184 and the receipts over £1,480.

ENGLAND'S HALF-DOZEN.

Belgium Fail to Stay the Pace in First Representative International.

The first thoroughly representative team that England has fielded against Belgium gained a very decisive victory at Highbury yesterday by 6 goals to 1.

England led at the interval 2-1, but did not deserve their lead, for the Belgians were faster and showed a good knowledge of the game.

They swung the ball about to such purpose that Taylor was forced to use three occasions to keep his charge intact. Vlaminck once sent in a terrific drive which the goalkeeper stopped, but could not hold the ball flying high over the bar.

K. E. Hegan scored both England's first half goals. The first was a poor shot, which hit a lump and bounced over the top of the goalkeeper's head, and the second was a glorious effort, and the best incident of the game. Receiving the ball near the half-way line, he ran on to beat Jean Debie with a great drive.

In between these goals Vlaminck converted an excellent centre from Bustin.
